Quotes From The Koran:

The whore and the whoremonger - scourge each of them with an hundred stripes; and let not compassion keep you from carrying out the sentence of God; if ye believe in God and the last day: And let some of the faithful witness their chastisement.

If any of your women be guilty of whoredom, then bring four witnesses against them from among yourselves; and if they bear witness to the fact, shut them up within their houses till death release them.

And whoever of you is not rich enough to marry free believing women, then let him marry such of your believing maidens as have fallen into your hands as slave.

Forbidden to you also are married women, except those who are in your hands as slaves.

(Muslim girls seldom dare to give sex before marriage. Boys seldom dare to even try. Their best chance for sex is an eternal orgy in Paradise as a reward for heroes. - Kurt Saxon)

THE PROMISE

And they who were foremost on earth — the foremost still.
These are they who shall be brought nigh to God,
In gardens of delight;
A crowd of the former
And few of the latter generations;
On inwrought couches

Reclining on them face to face:

Aye-blooming youths (handsome young boys) go round about to them

With goblets and ewers and a cup of flowing wine;

Their brows ache not from it, nor fails the sense:

20

And with such fruits as shall please them best,

And with flesh of such birds, as they shall long for:

And theirs shall be the Houris, with large dark eyes, like pearls hidden in their shells,

In recompense of their labours past.

No vain discourse shall they hear therein, nor charge of sin,

But only the cry, 'Peace! Peace!'

And the people of the right hand- oh! how happy shall be the people of the right hand!

Amid thornless sidrahs,

And tall trees clad with fruit,

And in extended shade,

30

And by flowing waters,

And with abundant fruits,

Unfailing, unforbidden,

And on lofty couches.

Of a rare creation have we created the Houris,

And we have made them ever virgins.

From "THE CRUSADES"

by Richard Suskind

It was difficult, if not impossible, to guard against the Assassins. They could easily slip into any Moslem court or camp, wait for the right moment, then strike quickly with knife or poison. Hundreds of caliphs, sultans, emirs, and other officials were killed by them. When the Grand Master of the sect the most famous of them, Sheik Sinan, was known by the Christians as the Old Man of the Mountains, wanted a murder committed he would summon one of the fedais (devoted ones) into his private gardens, prime him with hashish, and give him his choice of beautiful women and handsome boys. After a night of two of debauchery—a foretaste of paradise, so to speak—the Assassin would leave on his mission prepared to kill or die; and since he was assured of going to heaven, it made little difference to him if he was killed in the performance of his duty. The Assassins were completely indifferent to death.

On one occasion, for example, a Christian emissary arrived in Alamut to discuss a treaty with Sinan. After dinner, over copper mugs of thick black Turkish coffee, the talk came around to loyalty and devotion. The emissary said that the Templars and Hospitalers were the most devoted of the knights and would do anything rather than betray their Order. Sheik. Sinan smiled contemptuously. "You Nazarenes know nothing of devotion. I'll show you the meaning of true devotion." The courtyard was surrounded by a ring of high towers, a fedais standing on the top of each one. Sinan raised his hand and beckoned, and one after the other the fedais dove from the towers and dashed their brains out on the tiles of the courtyard. "That," said Sinan, "is devotion! Shall I go on with the demonstration?" "Please," the shaken emissary begged. "No more!"

When Conrad learned of the council's decision, he fell to his knees and cried out in a loud voice, "Oh God, hear me! If I am unworthy of the crown, then give it to another!" A few days later, as he was returning home from a visit to a friend's house, he was stopped in the street by two men. One of them handed him a letter, and while he was reading it, the other plunged a knife repeatedly into his belly and side. He was carried to his palace, where he died a few minutes later. One of the killers was hacked to bits on the spot; the other was taken alive, tortured, and confessed that he had been sent to do the job by the Old Man of the Mountains because Conrad, a couple of months before, had captured a vessel loaded with goods for the Assassins and had refused to return it.

THE POWER OF MAN AND THE FAITH OF WOMAN

(About Muslims)

From Godey's Lady's Book & Magazine 1872

IN the year 571 of our era there was born in Arabia the self-styled Prophet of God, Mahomet, predicted, as we believe, by St. John, in the closing book of the Bible, who calls him "the false prophet." In this Divine history the rise and fall of the enemy of Christ is clearly portrayed.

In it's influence over the destinies of mankind, Mahomet must rank as the most wonderful of the men who have established a system of government founded on religion. That his natural endowments for the work were great will be seen by the following sketch from the best authenticated traditionists:—

"He was of middle height, rather thin, but broad of shoulders, wide of chest, strong of bone and muscle. His head was massive, strongly developed. Dark hair, slightly curled, flowed in a dense mass down almost to his shoulders.

His face was oval-shaped, slightly tawny of color. Fine, long, arched eyebrows were divided by a vein which throbbed visibly in moments of passion, Great, restless, black eyes shone out from under long, heavy eyelashes.

A full beard framed his manly face. His skin was clear and soft, his complexion 'red and white,' his hands were as 'silk and satin'—even as those of a woman. His step was quick and elastic, yet firm. His whole gait and presence were dignified and imposing. His countenance was mild and pensive. His laugh was rarely more than a smile.

In his habits he was extremely simple, though he bestowed great care upon his person. Perfumes he loved passionately. Strong drinks he abhorred."

Such was Mahomet when, in his twenty-fourth year, he married his first wife, his only true wife, Chadija. Her character and its influence over him were, in the result, as noteworthy almost as his own, in their fitness to sustain his strength, and to guide him in his career. Together they showed the great results that may be wrought by the united efforts of the Power of Man and the Faith of Woman.

Chadija was older by fourteen years than her husband. She possessed a rare union of qualities—housewifely capacity and a capability of faith that made her doubly his helper. The cares of life were removed from him by her motherly hands; and when he returned from his desert wanderings, bearing with him his revelations, she was his first convert. Mahomet told her what he had seen. Whereupon she answered and said: "Rejoice, oh dear husband, and be of good faith! He, in whose hands stands Chadija's life, is my witness that thou wilt be the prophet of this people."

In 621 Chadija died, at the age of sixty-five years. The immediate result of her loss was to reduce him almost to beggary. His bitter grief was aggravated by persecution, and he almost despaired, when by a remarkable event, which we have not space to narrate, he became established at Medina. His history from that time forth is well known. He was recognized as a great prophet, saw his power daily increase, and died at last, at the age of sixty-one, surrounded by believing followers, and leaving to his successors the germ of a mighty empire.

The Eastern nations, when the Gospel was opened, and Christianity organized its first churches, had become deplorably fallen and wicked. Anarchy and unbelief held sway over the people. It seemed that the justice of God, in condemnation of the corrupted churches of Asia and Africa, had allowed the whirlwind of Islam to rage over the wretched apostates. Christ had been forsaken, crucified afresh, and put to open shame by His own pretended followers:

Therefore Antichrist founded his kingdom on the ruins of the Eastern churches. The extent of this Eastern Christianity is not generally borne in mind. It was "estimated at seven or ten times the size of the coeval Christianity of Europe, Roman, and Greek together." In Western Asia there were eighty-four bishoprics; in Palestine forty-seven. Armenia was wholly converted, and Persia so thronged with Christians, that when Sapor the Old began his first persecution, he put twenty-five bishops to death at once, one of whom is said to have had in his diocese two hundred and fifty priests. But this great body was wholly corrupt. The pure faith of Christ had been so changed and obscured by a multitude of foolish and profane rites introduced from the surrounding idolatries that none of the vital faith of their religion remained.

MAHOMETANISM ESTABLISHED

(A Warning From 129 Years Ago)

The Koran had been accepted by the followers of the dead prophet. In this, his sacred book, he sets aside reason, stifles conscience, represses inquiry, forbids private judgment: the only moral responsibility he acknowledges is that of implicit obedience to the laws of the Koran as the ultimate of truth, of knowledge, and of righteousness. (From the Koran: "And it is not for a believer, man or woman, to have any choice in their affairs, when God and His Apostle have decreed a matter: and whoever disobeyeth God and His Apostle, erreth with palpable error")

His creed was made for all men; those who refused to accept it were to be subdued or destroyed. His followers of every name—Persians, Moors, Arabs, Turks, representing the three Continents of Asia, Africa, and Europe—were united in rejecting the divinity of Christ, and hating Christianity. War was their great argument; their aim was the sovereignty of the earth. Nor was power the only reward offered to true believers. The harems of this world and the houries of heaven were to be theirs. It was not strange that they seized upon his promises, so flattering to the pride and the passions of men. They made of warfare for the faith the profession of their lives, the avenue to gain and glory. Like a consuming fire, driven by a furious wind, they burst over the Eastern churches, offering only the alternative of destruction or conversion. The sacred buildings of these degenerate sects were leveled to the ground, or transformed into mosques, where none but men might enter, worshippers of Allah and of Mahomet his prophet.

During a hundred years the Christians of Asia, Africa, and Southern Europe were beaten down by successive floods of invasion. Finally, the Moslems, gathering all their powers, came as with the determined purpose to subdue all the kingdoms of Europe, and to blot out forever the name of Christendom from the islands of the Northern Ocean. Had the battle of Tours, fought in 732, been decided in favor of the False Prophet, Europe might now be under the heel of a Caliph, and the muezzin chanted from the towers of Paris and London; and our Pilgrim ancestors, if, indeed, they came, would have come to propagate the Koran among the savages of Massachusetts.

For the time, Islam was checked, never again to penetrate so far Into Europe. But the East was sorely ravaged for centuries. Jerusalem was twice taken, and finally, in 1185, became the prey of the Saracens. Little is left of it but a heap of ruins. Constantinople fell In 1453. Both these cities have been retained by the victors. Their condition of Ignorance, misery, and decay is the strongest commentary on Mahometan rule.

Some Resource Notes To Ruminare On:

Anyone who says Islam is a beautiful and peaceful faith and should be tolerated here is either a fool or a traitor. Islam and terrorism are inseparable.

And if anyone says, "All Gods are one", let him tell that to the families of our dead.

Much has been made of the tapes by Osama and his lieutenants. Were they coded? Was there a hidden message in them? The "experts" all said there was no way of knowing. But the message should be obvious to anyone not blinded by misplaced tolerance. This is an example of hiding in plain sight.

They are openly recruiting. The message is, "Join our heroic struggle against the Great Satan. Paradise will be the gift from Allah to all those who join our holy cause".

No reasonable person would accept the Koran's description of Paradise. But Muslims aren't reasonable. They have to be long on belief and short on think or they wouldn't be Muslims. In our society we have many thousands of underclass young Muslims, working at low-level, dead-end jobs, if they have a job at all. They are sexually frustrated since they can't afford to marry. They have the idealism and suggestibility of youth. The message, which is plain to them, is that if they strike a blow for Allah and are killed in the act or are executed later, they are assured of their eternal hero's reward.

IS ALLAH ALSO THE GOD OF ABRAHAM AND JESUS, AS CLAIMED BY MUSLIMS?

FROM THE ENCYCLOPEDIA BRITANNICA, NINTH EDITION,
1892

During his married life with Khadija, Mohammed came in contact with a religious movement which had laid hold on some thoughtful minds in Medina, Mecca and Taif. In Mecca, as elsewhere, Arabian heathenism was a traditional form of worship, chiefly concentrated in great feasts at the holy places; it was clung to because it had come down from the fathers. The gods were many; their importance was not due to the attributes ascribed to them, but to their connection with special circles in which they were worshipped. They were the patrons of idols and tribes, and symbolized, so to speak, the holy unity which united the present and past members of these. Above them all stood Allah, the highest and universal God.

The particular gods are said to have been regarded as children of Allah. It appears that the Meccans called their goddesses daughters of Allah; perhaps it was their disputes with Mohammed that forced them to this view. At first, certainly, al-Lat and al-Ozza were names of the wife of the supreme god; sexual dualism dominated in the oldest Arab idea of the godhead. It was Mohammed who first reduced the gods Jinns-i.e. to subordinate demons and kobolds - as he did not deny their existence, but only stripped off their divinity.

By Allah the holiest oaths were sworn; in his name (Bismika Allahumma) treaties and covenants were sealed; the lower gods were not fit to be invoked in such cases, as they belonged to one party instead of standing over both.

DID MOHAMMED CREATE A UNIFYING RELIGION TO BE PASSED ON AFTER HIS LIFETIME, OR WAS HE JUST A CULTIST GATHERING A FLOCK OF SHEEP TO SHEAR? IT SEEMS HE HAD NO THOUGHT TO BENEFIT ANYONE WHO OUTLIVED HIM.

FROM THE SAME SOURCE:

When Mohammed died, the separate pieces of the Koran, notwithstanding their theoretical sacredness, existed only in scattered copies; they were consequently in great danger of being partially or entirely destroyed. Many Moslems knew large portions by heart, but certainly no one knew the whole; and a merely oral propagation would have left the door open to all kinds of deliberate and inadvertent alterations. Mohammed himself had never thought of an authentic collection of his revelations; he was usually concerned only with the object of the moment, and the idea that the revelations would be destroyed unless he made provision for their safe preservation, did not enter his mind. A man destitute of literary culture has some difficulty in anticipating the fate of intellectual products.

HOW TO DEFEAT THE TALIBAN

To defeat an enemy, one must understand his main weakness. The main weakness of the male Muslim is his delusion that he's a man. But his belief system and his culture prevents maturity.

The Koran says, "Men are superior to women on account of the qualities which God (Allah) hath gifted one above the other" and "Men are in charge of women".

After a Muslim boy outgrows his love for his mother because of dependence, he sees her only as an ignorant drudge, dominated and enslaved by his father. So he doesn't develop normal feelings toward women. Without normal feelings toward half his species, he can't mature. So, like his own father, he is in a state of arrested adolescence, a teenager, regardless of his actual years.

As you already know, most boys don't really like girls. To a boy who hasn't reached puberty, girls aren't of much use or interest. But after puberty, the normal boy is sexually attracted to girls and becomes emotionally attracted and will bond with a girl, as Nature has decreed.

But the boy who is not able to become emotionally attracted to a girl will become emotionally bonded with other males. He needs sex but he doesn't like females. Unless he becomes an active homosexual, his emotional and often unconscious attraction to his buddies is repressed, giving him guilt feelings and doubts about his masculinity. This is the abusive boyfriend and husband. He will not admit, even to himself, that underneath his show of masculine domination, he would be better off turning himself in at the nearest gay bar.

This pattern is random in our culture, but typical in Muslim cultures. To the Muslim male, sex is for reproduction and if to fulfill a need, is somehow degrading, as he needs something from an inferior. So is it any wonder that most male Muslims are latent homosexuals?

To carry through on the teenageer analogy, consider the Muslim nations. They are each run the way teenagers would run a nation. They are immature in every respect. Every Muslim nation is a despotism and except for the oil-rich nations, they are all impoverished.

Their leaders, like most teenagers, are immature, ignorant and primitive. They believe they know everything, can do anything, can get away with anything, are always right and everyone else is wrong. In short, they can't be reasoned with and also like teenagers, have no grasp of the laws of cause and effect.

An example of their lack of logic is their attitude toward the "Great Satan", us. Much of the Middle East, including Afghanistan, has suffered a severe drouth for the past three years, preventing good harvests. Their Mullahs blame the drouth on Islam's lack of dedication in fighting Allah's war against the Great Satan. From January, 2001 until September 11, the U.S. sent Afghanistan 140 million dollars worth of food and Medicines, with even more sent since September. 11. Then why doesn't Allah send rain instead of depending on the Great Satan to send food? Allah is a perfect example of a teenager's fantasy.

So here we have this mob of Allah's Kamikazis, boasting of their intent to die for Allah, and at the same time, defeating the world's mightiest power. It reminds me of Saddam's boast that the Gulf War would be the "Mother of all battles". He got his elite troops slaughtered in a hundred hours, one of the shortest wars in history. Afghan warriors are indeed, universally credited with being fierce fighters, welcoming death, as if that would assure them of victory.

Most Muslim males are noticeably feminine, in spite of their beards and guns. It is common all over the Middle East to see two males walking hand-in-hand. And what other belief system demands the faithful to pray five times a day with his butt in the air, as if inviting his god to sodomize him?

Although their belief system forbids homosexuality, they do it whenever they think they can get away with it. But it is promised in the hero's afterlife.

It isn't at all far-fetched to see their bravery as an attempt to leave a usually impoverished, sexually repressed and miserable Earth life for an eternity of whoopee with other males. All their courage could mask the fact that they are simply desperately horny for boys, not to mention, gullible.

So here is my plan to defeat the Taliban. Let the CIA print millions of leaflets showing photos of the most graphic homosexual acts. Prominent on the leaflet would be a message in the simplest Arabic, since most Muslims can barely read, if at all, "Fight the Great Satan and become martyrs. Allah will then grant you an eternity of delight".

Millions of such leaflets dropped over Afghanistan would have a great demoralizing effect on the Taliban. Pornography is forbidden in the world of Islam. Most Muslims have never seen any. So a Taliban member would be treated to either a trauma or a turn-on.

The death penalty would be imposed on anyone keeping one. They would be gathered up and destroyed, except for those given to Osama and his lieutenants to paper the walls of their caves.

This psychological warfare would cause these boastful butterflies to turn on one another. The various factions would accuse each other of not being so courageous or idealistic as wanting to get to Paradise and have it on with guys.

I'm not sure what names they call each other relating to. homosexuality. But in the movie, "Lawrence Of Arabia", Omar Sharif calls another Arab, "thou tulip". In that case, there are more tulips in Afghanistan than in Holland.

Of course, some would protest that they were too normal; that they were willing to die to get at those dark-eyed houris, perpetual virgins. I can't see perpetual virginity as an asset. An inadequate male wants a virgin so as to hide his lack of skill at lovemaking. A primitive wants a virgin so as to insure that any child from their union will be his. But since houris are perpetual virgins, there could be no children. Wouldn't an inflatable doll do as well?
